

Davis County/Golden Spike Stormwater Coalition
Contractor and MS4 Annual Training
Practical Implementation of Low Impact Development Requirements

Date: Wednesday February 24, 2021

Location: On-line

Program Objectives:

Train contractors, developers, and municipal (MS4) employees on the new Low Impact Development (LID) requirements and discuss implementation concerns and issues.

Program Outline:

8:00 Welcome and introduction

- Explain format and CEU opportunities
- Review schedule and introduce theme/topics/program

8:15 – 9:05 Using the State of Utah’s “A Guide to Low Impact Development in Utah” manual to select and size Low Impact Development facilities. We will review how to determine the Retention Volume Goal ( $V_{goal}$ ), the Water Quality Volume (WQV), and how to determine the storage capacity of a given facility. Lisa Stevens with Utah Division of Water Quality.

9:05 – 9:55 An overview of the Utah City Engineer’s Association (UCEA) on-line Storm Water Manual and how to use it as a resource in selecting and designing Low Impact Development Facilities. The Utah City Engineer’s Association recently posted an on-line reference manual intended to supplement the State’s manual providing technical information and guidance to Contractors and Developers as well as MS4 employees on various Low Impact Development and Storm Water Treatment techniques. Ryan Taylor – T-O Engineers, Inc. – chairman of the UCEA subcommittee on Hydraulics and Hydrology.

9:55 – 10:55 Panel Discussion – moderated by Zoe Rogich, the Langdon Group. Panel to include representatives from several municipalities who are responsible for running the local stormwater programs.

This will be a question/answer period where the audience may ask different cities how they intend to implement new requirements. Audience can compare differences between cities. Cities can get new ideas that might assist them in have a more effective program. The idea is to begin dialogue between the affected parties and work together to meet new requirements.

Those invited to sit on the panel:

- Todd Christensen – Bountiful City
- Jens Jorgensen – Farmington City
- Others still pending
