

James Alexander CSP, CHST

As a certified safety professional, James Alexander is recognized for his strategic acumen and dynamic leadership in Environmental Health & Safety (EHS). Excelling in engagement at all levels - individual, project, and organizational - James employs a blend of tried-and-true methods with contemporary technological solutions.

James' expertise in Environmental Health & Safety (EHS) lies in developing and executing comprehensive safety programs tailored to complex organizations. His approach encapsulates meticulous safety planning, effective implementation, and rapid response protocols for incidents. James navigates individual safety concerns while maintaining alignment with broader projects and organizational objectives. His experience, especially in the construction sector, has allowed him to cultivate a culture of safety through risk assessments, safety management systems, and immersive training initiatives.

James' is Known for adaptability and foresight in evolving safety standards, incorporating the latest technology into trusted approaches. This innovative mindset, coupled with extensive engagement with state and federal agencies, has led to safer, more productive workplaces and highlighted his commitment to continual EHS excellence.