PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Confluence Communications, 2008 – Present

- Andrew is Vice-President and Co-Founder of Confluence Communications, where he provides content development, instructional design, and multimedia production services to government and private-sector clients. Andrew's work focused on complex continuing education and professional training programs, with a strong subject matter expertise in the building industry, energy efficiency, and renewable energy.
- Andrew has developed material for organizations like the American Institute of Architects, BNP Media, SMUD, NYSERDA, Massachusetts Bay Transit Authority, RESNET, Professional Builder (SGC Media), and a host of Fortune 500 companies.
- Andrew works with media and publishing companies taking his knowledge of green building practices and building science to help craft training courses, articles, videos, white papers and reports. In addition to his work as a writer, Andrew also operates a full-service production audio and video recording and production studio. The studio offers the development and production of voice-over narration, video capture and editing, as well as musical score.
- Andrew leads a team of writers, editors, designers, videographers, voice over actors, and multimedia professionals to deliver full-service training and educational content development.
