The ADU Advantage: Unlocking Affordability Through Design

Learning the advantages and challenges of building an Accessory Dwelling Unit (ADU).
 Learning the Financial incentives to buyers through building an ADU.

Jordan Wall grew up in Washington, Utah. He met and married his wife, Sierra of Santa Clara, Utah, and they have three beautiful daughters. Jordan moved to Washington from Erda, Utah in the year 2000. He attended and graduated from Pine View HS. He was active in many sports and even competed at the state level in Debate. After high school he went on to study accounting and finance at Dixie State. While in college he built and installed cabinets and did residential electrical, where his love for construction began. He then acquired his B100 at age 22. He is a second-generation general contractor. His Father, Troy, built many multi-family and commercial buildings in the Salt Lake Valley and some in Southern Utah. Jordan enjoys outdoor recreational activities such as Hunting, Desert Racing, Camping but most of all enjoys watching his daughters compete in Jiu Jitsu and gymnastics. He also enjoys networking and being involved in the community. Jordan has been actively involved with the local government to help build and implement new code in downtown areas. As an Associate Director candidate, he would like to voice the opinions and needs of builders, developers and tradesmen and the issues they face.
