Summary

I have been working in the electrical industry since Jan 1996. I spent 1 1/2 years working in the warehouse of a local electrical contractor. At that point, I was then hired on as an electrician apprentice at the same location. Once I had completed my 5 year apprenticeship, I was immediately put in to a foreman role. As a foreman, I was asked to manage many projects that ranged from small scale to relatively large. I became an asset to the corporation as I was able to manage multiple projects at the same time. Throughout my 9 years with the areas largest electrical contractor, I worked on traffic signals, waste water treatment facilities, gas plants, gas stations, veterinary clinics, basic residential repair, new home construction, many doctors offices, phone company distribution facilities, and hospitals. This has afforded me the opportunity to develop a well rounded education within my field and to build many positive relationships which has ultimately allowed me to perform maintenance, repairs, installation, and small design for the area largest healthcare provider of which I am currently employed with.
