

David Holland Syracuse, Utah

David Holland is a safety professional with over 25 years of experience in health, safety and environmental management. He is the owner and president of Wasatch Safety Group, a consulting company based in Syracuse, Utah.

David has a diverse background with over 25 years in construction and workplace safety. He has been involved in areas such as safety training, risk and claims management, PSM, program creation and development, coaching, and has a personal passion for workplace safety.

David has achieved the certification of CHST (Construction Health and Safety Technician) and is currently studying for the CSP designation.

He is actively involved in promoting the safety profession by teaching safety and OSHA classes for local associations. He is an active member of several safety associations both locally and nationally.

David and his wife Holly currently live in Syracuse, Utah with their 4 children.